Hon. Ralston New Defence Minister

Canadians received a shock and bad news on Monday when news spread of the death between Ottawa and Toronto of Hon. Norman Rogers, National Defence Minister, who with three flying officers were killed in a crash as the party winged its way to Toronto where the Hon. Rogers had a speaking appointment. Investigation revealed that they were endeavoring to make a forced landing when the crash occurred.

Mr. Rogers who was 48, had recently returned from overseas where he conferred with British officials, visited the front lines, the Canadian camp at Aldershot and made himself generally familiar with his job and was doing a fine job of it when the accident occurred. It will be a distinct loss to Canada as he was a person of keen intellect and understanding and very hard working, especially in his new job.

Premier King has named the Hon. J. L. Ralston, now Minister of Finance, to take over the portfolio of Defence and the change will be made next week, after the Hon. Ralston presents his budget to the House at Ottawa. A veteran of the last war, an expert in economics, and a man of broad experience Mr. Ralston will bring a great deal of ability to his new post.

A general cabinet shake-up at Ottawa is suggested, but no definite announcements have been forthcoming as yet.

UNITED STATES URGED TO USE ITS GOLD BILLIONS LEND ALLIES ALL THEY NEED TO BUY EVERYTHING THEY NEED FOR WAR

(From "Coming Events," New York Financial Paper, June 12)

New York.—We are not "edging" into the European war, we are plunging toward it at a rate which would have been unthinkable only a few weeks ago and there are not going to be any half-way measures about our assistance. We are not only going to furnish the Allies the guns, airplanes and ammunition now on hand, but we are also going to send them huge quantities of food, clothing, motor trucks, tractors, tanks, ships, finished steel, gasoline, and we'll probably arrange to let them use many of our boats and perhaps part of our navy. In fact, this country may wind up by declaring itself no longer neutral nor merely non-belligerent, but an active participant to the extent of helping the Allies in every way possible short of sending men abroad. So the cry will be "don't send men, lend dollars." Lend the Allies all the dollars they need in the form of gold credits which can be used to pay American manufacturers and producers for the things that will have to be shipped to England and France. We have almost $20 billions of gold in this country today and the argument will be that this gold may become worthless, let's put it to use in the cause of freedom and democracy before it spoils on our hands. As a consequence of this likely development, we should look forward to a credit boom in this country, perhaps exceeding anything heretofore experienced. We should see a prolonged rise in commodity prices, a marked increase in industrial production and in spite of heavier taxes, a sharp gain in corporate earnings.

HON. SOLON LOW WINS BY ACCLAMATION

Hon. Solon E. Low, former member of the Alberta House from Warner, was elected by acclamation in the by-election in Vegreville when no other papers were presented at the expiration of the time for receiving nominations on Monday.

The elected S. C. member for this seat resigned to leave it open to be contested by Solon and we congratulate Mr. Low on his election. It was rumored that the Independents would contest the seat, but when the election time drew near they changed their mind and left the seat open to the government candidate.

NEWS NOTES

Dr. Hall was in the Del Bon district last Wednesday.

Before we publish again, all the students, except those writing final exams will be away from the schools and enjoying their holidays.

George Ralph, Ross Larson and others were in Cardston, Waterton, Pincher and towns enroute on Tuesday with advertising for the big Dominion Day celebration.

The Raymond 1st Ward Sacrament meeting Sunday evening who have returned home from last was addressed by students their schools, mostly in Utah. The young people reported on their activities and made a very interesting meeting.

Golfing at the local course is carried on now early and late. From 5 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. these days golfers can be seen making the rounds of the course with the club bags over their shoulders. We understand that a good membership is signed up and enjoying this fine sport.

Work is under way this week adding to and remodelling the old Red and White store location near the Capitol Theatre to house Fromm's Jewelry, and also for a dwelling for the Fromm family. T. K. Roberts has been master minding the work and Ehlert and Son are doing the stuccoing on the job.

$20,000,000 is to be spent by Britain and France in the erection of two munitions plants in Canada, and they will be built just as quickly as possible. One of them will be a shell filling plant which will cost about $8,000,000 and the other plant will manufacture nitro cellulose explosives.

The rain Friday afternoon and night was very welcome and came at a very opportune time. It made the roads Saturday morning a veritable sea of mud, but they dried rapidly and by the afternoon they were pretty good again and fields and gardens benefitted immeasurably by the downpour.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wight of Provo, Utah, were Raymond visitors again Monday following a tie-up at the border when they tried to return home, accompanied by Mr. Wight's brother Ed, who is going to Utah to attend school. Between the immigration officials, and getting stuck in the mud and flat tires Ross remarked that they had "a very necessary for visas for the children, but they finally got away and south of the border on Thursday.

Paris Nearly Surrounded--Allies Hard Pressed

As Hitler's big offensive against the Allied lines swings into its 10th day, the French and British lines are holding firm in most sections and the advances that the Germans are making are made at the cost of tremendous loss of mechanized units and man power. Like the drives of the first World War, human life is considered as nothing, and division after division of infantry are ordered into the path of artillery and machine gun fire which mows them down by the thousands, only to have more ordered in to meet the same fate.

General Weygand has worked out an effective system of defense, and when troops are forced to withdraw to new positions, these moves are being accomplished with minimum loss, so that while lines have not held firmly and Paris is being threatened from three fronts the Allies are not sacrificing anywhere near as many men as the Nazis and are wearing the German war machine down, and if, as is claimed, the entire force of the German attack is thrown into the present conflict, it looks as if the machine were doomed for a breakdown and disappointment. B. E. F. units are being added to steadily now as the evacuated army of Flanders is being re-organized and sent in to assist the French forces along the 200 mile battle front in France.

To date Italy has definitely received the worst of the bargain in her declaration of war against the Allies. What with the capturing of many ships, and the scuttling of a number more, it is stated that between 40 and 50 vessels, some of them very large ones, are either destroyed by their officers, or captured by the Allies. British planes have bombed air bases of the Italians inflicting heavy losses and it was reported, though not confirmed, that in a naval battle, Allies ships inflicted heavy damage and losses on Italian boats. Italian troops are said to be massing behind the German lines to aid the Nazis, but this is not confirmed. Turkey is ready to act, but to date has made no declaration. The Balkans are endeavoring to remain neutral, which seems to become more difficult every day. Russia has issued her ultimatum and remains steady, and all eyes are turned to the United States to see how far she will go in assistance to the Allies. To date much has been done, but in a personal communication Thursday from Premier Reynaud of France to President Roosevelt, he asked that guns and munitions and planes be speeded as quickly as possible to the Allies to assist them in their fight for freedom and democracy.

Despite its dark hours and steady gains by German divisions, the spirit is that it will only last so long, and that in the end freedom and democracy will prevail and the spirit of dictatorship and domineering will be crushed. May the victory be hastened for the side of right and truth.

The Germans occupied Paris on Friday after French troops had withdrawn during the night. The French army retired on each side of the city and there was no particular significance in the Germans entering, the French giving it up to prevent its demolition by artillery fire and bombs. Through the tenth day the big battle continued unabated and British troops were being added to hourly. The Maginot line is reported as having been attacked but no further information has been given.

NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilde were at the Temple Wednesday with a number of Raymond people.

Casey Ralph is modernizing his home, with Jas. E. Anderson doing the plumbing.

W. E. Ross of the Calgary Power Co. Ltd., was a Raymond visitor Monday of this week.

Mrs. Dora Pilling of Calgary is visiting here with her mother Mrs. Blanche Scoville and other relatives and friends.

Quite a lot of school students bid good-bye to books and lessons for awhile when they left the school today for the summer holidays. Departmental exams start next Wednesday.

Stamped advertising is circulating now and all neighboring towns are being billed. With the proceeds going to the Red Cross a good attendance both locally and from the district is expected.

Wednesday and Thursday were both hot days with the mercury climbing way up into the 80's and a hot wind with plenty of dust blowing at times. Rain would be very welcome.

T. Geo. Wood was speaker at the Rotary luncheon on Monday and reported some of the high lights of his recent trip to Winnipeg where he attended the convention of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

Italy Enters War With Germany

"SPIRIT OF THE EMPIRE" PARADE

Frank R. Taylor, Chairman of the Parade Committee for Dominion Day has decided to call his parade "The Spirit of the Empire," and has asked the Recorder to ask all those planning entries in the parade, to plan them with this thought in mind so that the whole parade will portray this theme.

We think in a time like the present, Frank has chosen wisely and the portrayal of this theme in floats, decorated cars, bicycles and so on should add a note of loyalty and appreciation of our government to our celebration and should be a spectacle long to be remembered by the boys and girls.

This information has been put out early so that those planning to participate may do so with this thought in their minds.

RED CROSS TEA WEDNESDAY

A Red Cross Tea will be held by the Ladies of the local Red Cross organization Wednesday afternoon next week, and if the weather permits, it will be held on the lawn at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Madill. Every person in the district is invited to attend and support the Red Cross work. Tickets have been sold for this event, but in the event of any person not having been contacted with a ticket, they are invited to come anyway and enjoy the gathering and also help the Red Cross Society.

A CHALLENGE TO DEMOCRATIC DEVOTION

Canadians today are being asked to buy War Savings Certificates. What does this mean? It means this: That our answer will be the measure of our real devotion to democracy. To free dom. We have been told that democracy is decadent. That our ideals of freedom are meaningless. That our way of life cannot compel the devotion that goes to the totalitarian creed.

War Savings Certificates can answer, and powerfully, to that indictment. To the extent that we buy them we will tell whether there exists the reality of democratic responsibility, of democratic loyalty, of democratic unity.

In France today the watch word is: Advance or die. In England Mr. Churchill exclaims: "I offer you blood, tears, toil and sweat." And he adds: For all that Britain means, I appeal to you — We must save ourselves from the black night of barbarism.

In coming weeks, the people of this country have the chance of showing whether their thought of freedom's meaning, their understanding of the meaning of this terrible conflict, is as deep and real as that of the peoples of Britain and France.

The real challenge of War Savings Certificates is the challenge of whether the fibre of dictatorship. The challenge of whether the discipline of the lash is as powerful as the discipline of freedom.

Let Canadians, by buying these War Savings Certificates, by answering with all and the least of their means the great cry for help that goes up, show how strong is the discipline of freedom. Let them determine that it will be remembered in years to come that Canada did not vent its anger at brutality

At one of the blackest moments of the European conflict so far as the Allies were concerned Italy was plunged into the conflict Monday, or rather we should say plunged herself in, to assist Germany.

Norway had just capitulated after King Haakon and his government had left the country on a British battleship for England, and the German hordes, estimated at 1,800,000 men were pounding away on the French line on a 210 mile front making spearheads in some places within 40 miles of Paris. In the midst of all this pressure and disappointing news on the part of the Allies, Mussolini speaking in Rome said that Italy's hour had come and ordered troops into the French River ia. The action was not unexpected and relieved a tension that has existed for some time due to Italy's constant preparation for war. It caused sudden and definite reactions on the part of the Allies and also the United States, and President Roosevelt on Monday made himself very plain when he said that Mussolini had stuck the dagger in the backs of his friends and that henceforth all possible aid in finance and materials will be given the Allies in the noble fight they are making against those who would crush democracy and the liberty that it gives a freedom loving people.

Italy's move caused no consternation amongst the French and British officials except to order the rounding up of all Italian citizens and sympathizers as that given to other Nazi citizens who have already been taken care of. Now another load has been handed the Allies, but one of the cheering aspects is the fact that Russia has made a very definite stand and has told Italy to keep hands off the Balkans or else. If she maintains this spirit it will ease the burden somewhat on the Allies as it will keep this section from being invaded by the Nazi sympathizers.

The Swimming Pool is the most popular place in town right now. Austin Jones is caretaker, and folks big and little find relaxation in the cool waters of the pool at all hours of the day.

Broom handles and tent poles required by the Services and Government of Great Britain according to an economy order, are being made square for the duration of the war to eliminate loss of wood in the turning operations. The smaller section of wood needed gives the same strength required.

Excellent response was made locally to the appeal of the Red Cross for blankets, etc. To date there have been three shipments of bedding made with more coming in. It is pleasing to report to, that knitting and sewing of articles from the Red Cross rooms is keeping up and increasing, and shipments of these much needed supplies are going forward regularly. Local Red Cross officials are well pleased with the fine support they are receiving.

SUPPORT THE STAMPEDE

This year more than ever before, Raymond people should rally to and support the Stampede. The officials are going to willingly and gladly to put on the show and all proceeds above the bare expenses of the show are to be donated to the Canadian Red Cross. It, as in some years, we receive the patronage that we expect this will make a very nice contribution to this organization.

In the past there has been some criticism of the use of the money made at these entertainments.

It is a fact, we know it from association with the financial end of the Stampede for several years, that every possible economy possible has been effected and no money wasted. The surplus has been apportioned between the men furnishing the stock, and never have they received anywhere near what their time and effort has been worth; then the Boy Scouts have received a share to help them in their work, and the stampede fund has been kept at a point where it guaranteed the payment of expenses in case of a loss. Last year, this fund amounted for about $250.00 which when the rain messed things up, cut down attendance and left the full prize list to be paid from slender receipts.

However, what has been is lost. This year, the cowboys, owners of stock, management and all concerned are working on a bigger and better show, with the hope of aiding the Red Cross in the work it is doing so well. This cause alone is worth anyone's whole-hearted support, and coupled with the show of the calibre put on by Raymond should practically assure a record attendance for both days. Dominion Day on the first, and the finals and Raymond day on the second. Raymondites, you can do much if you plan to lend your support both financially and mentally to the show. And when your friends ask about where to go and what to do, invite them to Raymond and the big show.

Like every other project, the project will go on whether we aid or not. But there is always a warm satisfaction from having done your part to push it along, and in the present case especially there will be a great deal of satisfaction from assisting and encouraging others to assist in such a fine get-together as this in turning all profits, large or small over to the Red Cross. Keep the dates in mind, have an enjoyable relaxation on these days and assist the Red Cross through the Stampede.

SILVER BULLETS

Mr. Lloyd George, in the Great War, spoke of "silver bullets."

He was thinking of the savings of the people, of the money they could give to provide food and guns and shells for the Allied armies.

Canadians today, in all ranks and walks of life, and of all ages, get the opportunity to provide "silver bullets." It is through War Savings Certificates.

Under this War Savings Certificates plan—described in Government advertising—a five dollar certificate may be purchased for four dollars; a ten dollar certificate for eight dollars; a twenty-five dollar certificate for twenty dollars; a fifty dollar certificate for forty dollars; a one hundred dollar certificate for eighty dollars. A gilt-edge security, & with provisions for maturity (they mature in 7 1/2 years) they are an admirable investment; simple, safe, profitable, fitting the smallest budget.

But the real argument for War Savings Certificates is the opportunity they afford for service. In the Great War, people spoke of "doing their bit." Here, now, all of us are given the chance to do "our bit." People of small incomes, artis-

There is no other tobacco JUST LIKE

men, people too old for active duties, even children—all can strike a blow in this struggle by investing in these securities.

Government needs money, needs it desperately. Only by money, by what it can raise in taxes, by loans, and by these War Savings Certificates, can it help win the war. Therefore, if we believe the things we profess, if we are sincerely anxious to strike a blow for freedom, if we want in short, to save Canada from the "night of barbarism" of which Mr. Churchill has spoken so solemnly, we must—all of us who can—buy these certificates.

In Britain they are giving of their last farthing to help win this war. In Nazi Germany they are giving everything—are having everything taken from them, including their liberty—to win this war. Are we capable of less? Are we of weaker fibre?

After all, a good investment—good interest on and security for our savings—is a small thing to be asked in this crisis. Small, pitifully small, in comparison to what we ask of those who go to fight and die for us. At this hour, there is a poem which should have a poignant appeal to us:

"What have I given, bold sailor of the sea,

On Earth or Heaven, that you should die for me?

What can I give, Oh soldier leal and brave,

As long as I live, to pay the life
you gave?

What tithe or part can I return to thee,

Oh! Stricken heart, that thou should'st break for me?

The wind of Death for you hath slain life's flowers.

It withereth, God grant, all weeds in ours."

Harold King of Cardston was a Raymond visitor on Thursday.

WEEKLY LETTER

A Fifth Column Menace in The Weed War

In addition to the common annual, biennial and perennial weeds we have been accustomed to fighting for a number of years, we are now faced with the problem of dealing with four vicious perennials which are insidiously gaining a foothold and will, if not effectively combatted, play havoc with our farm practices. All four of these invaders are characterized by having extensive root stalks which allow them to stubbornly defy ordinary methods of cultivation since they spread more rapidly from the rootstalks than they do from seed:

Hoary Cress: Hoary Cress is a plant which resembles the common Stinkweed somewhat, but is a darker slate green. It commonly grows from 12 to 20 inches high and has a dense cluster of small white flowers on the top, hence its name "White Top" in some localities.

Russian Knapweed: Russian Knapweed grows somewhat taller and to some extent resembles alfalfa in the shape of the leaves and number of stalks which come from one root. The roots themselves are very blue in colour. This plant has a small white button-like sheath at the tips of the stalks from which protrude small purple or blue flowers.

Leafy Spurge: The Leafy Spurge plant is a sickly yellow green colour and has very small insignificant flowers. Its most distinguishing characteristic is that it contains a milky fluid which oozes out whenever the stem is broken.

Wild Morning Glory: The Morning Glory is known to most people due to its similarity to the ornamental variety. It usually grows in dense mats near the ground in a similar manner to Wild Buckwheat from which it is distinguished by the fact that it has quite large white to purple and blue, bell-shaped flowers.

In the past, numerous new weeds have been introduced and many false prophets have risen to foretell the doom they would surely bring to agriculture. The farmers, however, have been happy to find that ultimately there were reasonably effective methods of control developed which allowed them to at least continue farming in the presence of the weeds. Unfortunately, no such method of control has been forthcoming for these four new fifth columnists. Many of the Western States have each seen fit to appropriate hundreds of thousands of dollars to fight one or more of these weeds. In at least one state, which is well known to the writer, the county and state authorities have entered into contracts with the farmers and agree to eradicate the weeds within three years for a sum of $25.00 per acre. A great deal of land valued at $150.00 to $250.00 per acre is now under such a contract, the farmers having seen fit to lose the use of their land for this period since in its present infested state it is yielding them no profit.

To say that these weeds are difficult to eradicate is to put it mildly. No known method will destroy them in one year with the possible exception of the use of the very expensive herbicide, carbon bisulphide. Encouraging results have been obtained by 2 years of very intensive cultivation or by the use of chemicals during 2 seasons. Farmers are urged to play safe by not allowing any weeds whatever to go to seed on or near their farms. If weeds appear with which they are not familiar they should take steps to find out what they are and what are the approved method of control. The Experimental Station will promptly identify any samples which are sent in and will gladly advise as to the best known methods of control.

Local weed inspectors and the Field Crops Branch, Provincial Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, are also agencies which are anxious to help the farmers with this very important problem.

Mrs. Harry Pugh Smith

CHAPTER XI

Janet was eager to know if their employer was pleased so far as they had gone, but Mr. Busby volunteered no information and, in view of Tony Ryan's attitude toward herself, Janet was determined to betray no interest in the man. He never came near the Radcliffe place while she was there, Janet thought she understood the pointed way in which she was being ignored. Priscilla was a jealous goddess. She demanded undivided attention, and although during July Janet avoided her old crowd, she did from time to time run into one of them on the street. The absorbing topic of their conversation was Priscilla Leigh's crush on Tony Ryan.

She was startled one afternoon on staring out the great bay window of the master bedroom, to discover a young colored man busily engaged in removing the barbed wire which for years had replaced the wide gate between the big house and the cotton fields behind it.

Janet ran down the back stairs and out the rear entrance. "Aren't you making a mistake?" she inquired.

The man paused to wipe the sweat off his brow with his sleeve and smiled, shifting his feet.

"No'm Mr. Tony ordered me to get this wire out of the way. He say he done sick and tired snagging himself ever time he want to go over to his farm. He done bought all de land dis way and dat."

He gestured vaguely in a circle which took in both cotton fields and woods to the east and south.

"Mr. Tony 'low he going to have the finest stock farm in dis here state," announced the small darky with a broad smile, "and I ain't never knowed him to make a mess of nothing he started. I'm Deke, Miss. Maybe Mr. Tony done told you about me."

She shook her head. I'm merely an employee here."

"I was a jockey, Miss, before I got jammed at the quarter and cracked my ankle. I growed up in Kentucky and I don't know nothing 'cept horses, but you can't ride no races with a bum foot. I guess I'd have starved right on the sidewalks of New York if I hadn't run across Mr. Tony."

He glanced over his shoulder to the rambling farmhouse which stood on the slope of the hill where the fields met the woods. Janet frowned. A couple of men were sitting on a scaffolding at the side, lavishly applying whitewash.

"Dat's Rufe and the Earl of Jersey," volunteered Deke.

One afternoon Janet discovered more activity near the rear wall of the estate, and when she strolled down to inquire who cared to ask me on stigate she found a large, muscled man engaged in painting the new plank gates while a small elderly man in worn tweeds directed proceedings. "How do you do, Miss Phillips?" he murmured. He had an impeccable British accent and a monocle and one of the tired and most civilized faces she had ever seen.

"Evening, Miss," mumbled the man astride the gate.

Again Janet started.

"Don't mind, Rufe," said the little Englishman quietly. "I remember when he was a superb physical specimen. Now he's a little blab as to mental awareness, but quite harmless. I recall when Rufe could scarcely force his way through his admirers. Tony Ryan came across Rufe four years ago in the breadline. Since then Rufe has fared very well."

Janet was unreasonably exasperated to discover that a man in whom she was determined to see no good had, it would appear, at least one saving grace.

"Am I supposed to deduce that Tony Ryan is an incognito Santa Claus, or what?" she demanded.

The Englishman shrugged his narrow shoulders. "In spite of Tony's modest efforts to elude the allegation, wouldn't you say it takes a somewhat altruistic nature to invest in a farm and a farmhouse in order to provide a home and a decent livelihood for several fellow beings who are to a degree human wreckage?"

"Modest is one word I never connected with Mr. Ryan," was Janet's acrid comment.

The Englishman removed his monocle and then absently replaced it. "Tony has been spoofing you eh, what?"

Janet laughed. "It was you undoubtedly to whom Deke referred as the Earl of Jersey."

"Right! I no longer recollect who first called me the Earl of Jersey, but it was an attempt at wit I've never lived down. I've become so accustomed to the name, in fact, I answer to no other. I am, don't you know, a cook."

"A cook!"

"Rather," murmured the Earl of Jersey in his distinguished and imperturbable manner.

"I came to this country sixteen years ago by invitation to play polo on Long Island. Unfortunately I have a regrettable habit every so often of going completely blotto. I am what is commonly called a periodical drunkard."

"Oh!"

"At intervals, I am distinctly not myself. More than one of those intervals occurred when as a polo player I was expected to do the bright and shining for my side. After I had tumbled off several horses in a disgraceful fashion, no more American millionaires turned when she strolled down to inquire who cared to ask me on

"Economically my only hope was that I might be worth a salary as tutor to the children of the very rich. However, although even in my cups I can be relied upon to act the perfect English gentleman, I am not precisely an edifying model for tender youth. Consequently as a tutor I soon disappeared from the scene. I was, as it happened, quietly starving to death when I realized that a cook can always eat. For years I've been working in one or another greasy spoon restaurant, mostly in Hoboken or other New Jersey ports."

"You mean me to infer that he is running the farm as a home for human derelicts, your self included?" asked Janet slowly.

"Righto," said the Earl of Jersey.

By the last week in July Mr. Busby was next to finished at the Radcliffe house. There were only the loose ends to be tucked in. Janet began uneasily to wonder what would happen next. She had after considerable research decided on exactly what furnishings the old mansion required. She had the names of dealers and prices at her tongue's end, as well as neatly put down in a slender red notebook for Tony Ryan's consideration.

Deke had been engaged for several days in carefully weeding out the flower beds at the sides of the Radcliffe mansion. It was work at which he could sit down if his leg troubled him. The business of pruning the trees and cutting back the heavy shrubbery was to be left to Rufe under the supervision of the Earl of Jersey, so Deke said.

"Mr. Tony knows I can't handle no scythe," chuckled Deke, "but he promised to skin me alive if I missed any weed in these here flower beds. Mr. Tony can't stand nothing slovenly."

Janet's lips curled. "He expects you to earn your keep, does he?"

"Yas'm."

"There's nothing like being able to eat your cake and have it too," remarked. "I mean, it isn't everyone who can make a beautiful gesture pay."

"Yas'm," agreed Deke doubtfully. He had no idea what she was talking about, but the man who had come up behind her knew. "I've seen the skids put under too many Good Time Charlies to let that happen to me," said Tony Ryan in a hard voice.

Janet turned with a little gasp. He had come in through the rear gate. Under the dark tan of his lean cheeks there was a red glow like the dusky flush on a copper vase.

"I'd like it possible to have the house ready for occupancy by the twentieth of August," he said. "Please buy what you think the house needs and have them send the bills to me," he said crisply.

She winced, and her old antagonism flared up. "The price is no object, naturally?" she asked.

He gave her a curious glance. "I want the best."

CLOSE CALL

A. H. Zabriskie left by plane Saturday on a business trip to Vancouver for the Sugar Co. He returned the middle of the week.

The pilot of a "leaflet plane" reported back at headquarters two hours before he was due. His astonished C.O. asked for an explanation.

It is expected now that Alberta will donate 16 ambulances to the Red Cross, following the appeal of that organization for 50 from Canada. The requests continued to come in over the week end and swelled the prospective total to 6. This is surely commendable on the part of Albertans to show such a fine spirit.

"Well, Sir," the young officer replied, "I flew over enemy territory as instructed and tipped out the parcels over the side."

"Do you mean you threw them out still roped up in bundles?" said the C.O. in an anxious voice.

"Yes, Sir."

"Why, man, you might have hit somebody!"

FROMM'S

PROBLEMS OF EVERY-DAY LIFE

(By Dr. Maitland Lappin)

"I am almost eighteen, the youngest of the family and the only girl," writes Helen. "My brothers bring their girl friends into the home and my parents do not object. I have a boy friend, and although we will not be thinking of marriage for some years, yet I want to become engaged, but my parents object and call us 'a couple of kids.' They forbid me bringing him into the home. What would you say to that?"

I have known many cases of early marriage in which the fears and protestations of parents proved groundless. Everything turned out O. K. But that hardly warrants us believing that all early marriages will turn out well. Unfortunately, some do not. So much depends upon the individuals concerned how well they understand each other, the view they take of marriage and of life in general that it is unsafe to generalize about the success of early marriages.

In your case, however, immediate marriage is not anticipated, but merely an engagement. Have you considered how this might possibly affect your own future as well as that of your boy friend? At eighteen, you will still be young five or six years from now. You have finished school, but is your education complete? Is there nothing more for you to learn? A few years experience at home or in business may prove an excellent preparation for marriage.

What effect will an indefinite engagement have upon the young man? Will it handicap him in his quest for success in the particular line of work he has chosen? These are questions you ought to carefully consider.

DODGE TRUCKS 1940

MOST COMPLETE LINE IN DODGE HISTORY

95% of all truck and commercial car needs can now be met with the Dodge line. Horsepower and gross loadings have been increased throughout the line from the 1/2-ton Commercial to the 3-ton Heavy Duty chassis.

Dodge-built Cab-over-Engine models are now available in the 1 1/2 and 2-ton series. Dodge engineers have developed a cab-over-engine that is easy to get into, easy to get out of on the curb side and one in which steering and gear shifting are the same as in a conventional cab.

Changes in engine design produce more torque throughout the Dodge line for 1940. New "Sealed Beam" headlamps give 50% greater illumination. New springs have slower rate of deflection and give an improved ride. New 2-speed rear axles have a one-piece housing and are greatly strengthened.

All the time-tested Dodge Truck features, that mean Dodge Dependability, Long Life and Low Operating Costs, are retained for 1940.
